ACCIDENT FIRST DAY OF SEASON

Gun Exploded in the Hands of Singleton Carter as he Shot at Rabbit. Escaped with Slight Wound. Many Hunters out after Game.

Singleton Carter had a remarkable escape from death this morning, when the opening of the hunting season, when the gun which he was carrying exploded blowing off the breech and blowing off the lock. A small portion of the steel struck him on the forehead but did not even bruise him.

Carter was one of the many Gettysburg sportsmen who left town early in the morning in search of rabbits. He had three good shots before the accident and as he saw his fourth rabbit, took quick aim and pulled the trigger. The gun exploded with a terrific report but fortunately only a small piece struck the hunter. After recovering from the fright which he naturally suffered Carter picked up the pieces and upon inspection found that the barrel had been cracked some time ago. He returned to town satisfied that he had done enough gunning for one day.

All over the county hunters were out by the score and rabbits are reported plentiful in every section. The change of the season to two weeks later has improved the game considerably though there are a number of sportsmen who believe that for the southern portion of the state at least the season should not open until November 15.

The season for squirrels, quail, pheasants and wild turkey also came in today and many of the pretty squirrels feel victims to the prowess of Adams County sportsmen. The birds for which the open season came in are not numerous in this section and few bags are reported in that line.

Farmers throughout the county who prohibit hunting on their premises are more numerous than ever before and on all sides the hunters are confronted with trespass signs. There are, however, enough places where they are not prohibited to allow good sport which will doubtless be enjoyed for some weeks.

TRYING MILLER MURDER CASE

Dauphin County Court Scene of Trial of Leon Gilbert for Death of Former Hotel Gettysburg Proprietor. To Plead Drunkenness.

That he was drunk and irresponsible is the defense to be set up for Leon Gilbert, the negro, on trial in the Dauphin county court, before Judge McCarrell, for the killing on June 27 of Daniel K. Miller, formerly proprietor of Hotel Gettysburg.

The Commonwealth was expected to close its case this morning.

Harry A. Miller, a brother of the murdered hotel keeper, was the last witness called before the adjournment hour Tuesday evening. He was with his brother on the night of the killing and was an eye witness.

"I went down to the hotel between 5 and 6 o'clock on the evening of June 27, and I first saw Gilbert between 6 and 7 o'clock when he came back for the evening. He changed clothes and immediately went to the dining room, where he waited on a number of guests. Some time after 7 o'clock, I do not know just what time, I heard very loud talking in the dining room, and I went in to see what the trouble was.

"Gilbert was there arguing about something, and I told him to 'cut it out.' I left the room and soon after began talking loud again. Then my brother went to see about it, although Gilbert refused to stop it, and he told him to change clothes and go to the office for his money.

"As soon as Gilbert got his money he left and that was the last I saw him until when he came in and shot my brother, William Hastings. Brother Dan and I were sitting in the lobby at the ladies' entrance when Gilbert appeared at the door.

"We were busy in a conversation when Leon said to my brother: 'I want an explanation.' Dan said that he did not have time to talk to him and asked him to come back in the morning. When he would talk the matter over. Then Gilbert said: 'I'm not coming to work in the morning I want it now,' and then began firing at my brother. One of the bullets struck him on the wrist, another in the left breast and one near the left arm pit. He fell to the floor and then we took him to the office. The clerk telephoned for the ambulance and then they took him to the hospital.

"I called to see my brother every day and evening until he died. We could not see the revolver that Gilbert had for he fired the shots while it was in his coat pocket, one of the bullets striking the newel post at the stairway."

Other witnesses were: Chester Rhine, bar clerk at the Hotel Kelly; Charles Boyle, bar clerk at the Lehigh hotel; Robert W. Staire, bar clerk at the Dauphin hotel; Paul Hastings, Clerk at the Dauphin hotel; James Martz, cook at the Dauphin hotel; Arthur Lee, a waiter at the Dauphin hotel.

Dr. George Kunkel and Dr. F. M. Lohb pronounced death due to the wound and subsequent gangrenous affection caused by the bullet that penetrated the breast.

ROWDYISM RULED ON HALLOWE'EN

Little Fun Other than a General Beating of all Pedestrians. Town and College Boys Get into Altercation. Some Parties.

Gettysburg's celebration of Halloween—so far as any public demonstration was concerned—degenerated Tuesday evening into little more than a free-for-all beating match in which consideration for age, sex or anything else was entirely lacking. The "innocent bystander" got the same punishment as the real participants and unless one wished to join the paddy armed mob, life on the streets of town was most uninviting.

The old time customs of throwing corn, placing "tick-tacks" and other harmless amusements were almost entirely missing as was also the old trick of carrying away easily movable property and removing all available vehicles to out-of-the-way parts. Instead, the revelers simply armed themselves with good, stout, stinging paddles, went to Centre Square and vicinity and engaged in making life unpleasant and uncomfortable for their fellow citizens.

It was a merry crowd and few there were who took their punishment in anything but good nature although scores were given stout whacks with the formidable weapons. Several serious accidents came near being recorded, one when a little girl was thrown heavily to the pavement at the First National Bank building by a crowd who were running and another when Miss Virginia Tudor had her arm badly sprained. Boys and girls mixed in the crowd which at times numbered several hundred and things were quite noisy.

A crowd of Third Ward residents with a bass drum paraded about town for a while. There were a number of children out in fancy costume and things were quite "Hallowe'ish" until about half past nine when some altercation occurred between several college students and the crowd of town boys. The collegians were followed the entire way to the campus gate by the town crowd and there many more students had assembled. It was feared that some trouble would result as the entire crowd was more or less anxious for a fight but President Granville who happened along at the time, restored good feeling and after giving three cheers for the head of the college the boys returned to town and the students to their dormitories.

There were many parties in town during the evening and a dance in the armory. Autumnal decorations were in evidence with the customary Hallowe'een pumpkin lanterns and other spooky things. The dance was given by the Sons of Veterans Reserves and the town orchestra.

A very pleasant Hallowe'een was spent at the home of G. W. Spangler, his Sunday School class being present as follows: Mrs. Harvey Bream, Mrs. C. Basehoar, Mrs. H. Hartman, Mrs. F. Hartman, Mrs. Ida Sheads, Mrs. Peter Sheads, Mrs. Wilson Bream, Mrs. Miley Miller, Mrs. S. Smith, Mrs. Wallace Ziegler, Miss Minter, Miss Ella Toot, Mrs. F. B. Twiden, Mrs. George Diller, and Miss Emma Hartley, of East Berlin.

OLD FAMILY TESTAMENT

While visiting his brother, Joseph Sheffer, at York, Hon. E. L. Sheffer, of East Berlin, read a Testament that was printed in 1721. It had been the property of their grandfather, Elder Latchaw, who was born in 1764 and died in 1838 and is buried at the Mummert meeting house.

At the time of his death Mr. Latchaw was Elder of the Church of the Brethren when the two congregations, Upper and Lower Conewago, were one. He then resided on the farm now owned by Dr. R. N. Meisenhelder and tenanted by Abraham Altmann, near East Berlin.

During his ministry, two annual meetings of the church were held on the farm, one in 1814 and one in 1824. The mother of the Sheffer "boys" was also born on this farm in 1809. Mr. Sheffer also has their father's Testament dated 1821 which he used at school.

NEW YORK DECREES HOLIDAY

Large Crowds Pour Into City to View Fleet of Warships.

New York, Nov. 1.—Officially New York will observe tomorrow, so far as possible, as a holiday in honor of the presence of a hundred United States warships, the largest assemblage of floating guns and armament ever attempted by the United States navy. The board of aldermen unanimously adopted a resolution requesting the heads of city departments to allow employees a holiday tomorrow, when President Taft reviews the fleet.

Unofficially, it is apparent the day will be generally observed as a holiday and newspapers are prompting patriotism by urging that the Stars and Stripes be displayed from every available staff in the city.

Larks crowds continued to pour in from out-of-town points, and since it was the last day that visitors were to be permitted on board, the warships were overrun by the sightseers. The illumination of the fleet was repeated last night, making the Hudson river look from a distance like an immense summer amusement park. More than 150,000 electric bulbs outlined the towering military masts and the long hulls. The throngs which the beautiful sight attracted were estimated at more than 100,000 gathered along the river front.

REFORMED SYNOD HALTS CHURCH FUSION

Table Resolutions For Fusion With Presbyterians.

Philadelphia, Nov. 1.—There will be no union of the Reformed Church in America and the Presbyterian church for at least a year, it is believed.

The conference of the eastern synod of the Reformed church, now being held in this city, set aside the resolution in favor of a merger which had been presented by a committee of nine.

The motion to table the resolution was made by Rev. H. H. Rupp, of Reading, who asked that the subject be referred to the classis, of which there are twelve in the eastern synod.

Mr. Rupp's motion caused much discussion, and the president, Rev. Paul L. Leinbach, called for a vote.

It was impossible, in the confusion, to ascertain the number of votes for and against the motion, and the president asked for a standing vote, which proved a tie. Mr. Leinbach then decided to allow the report to be set aside, so that a thorough investigation could be made and the details thrashed out by the classis.

The committee of nine was appointed last week to consider the merging of the denominations.

The merger has already been favorably acted upon by the general synod of the Reformed church at its meeting in Canton, O., last May, but each of the six synods will also have to take favorable action. The Presbyterian general assembly voted for the union at its session in Atlantic City last May.

The eastern synod, which is the largest of the six, has 126,000 communicants, but nevertheless the synod members fear absorption when as a smaller body they are united with a larger one.

Rev. G. S. Creitz, of Reading, who as chairman of the committee, who acted as spokesman, recommended an effective co-operation of the Reformed church with the Presbyterian church at this time rather than an organic union of the two denominations.

TOBACCO TRUST PLAN ACCEPTED

Wickersham Argues to Avoid Receivership.

RUIN AND WRECK WOULD FOLLOW

Attorney General Accepts Reorganization Plan If Court Keeps Control Over Companies For Three Years.

New York, Nov. 1.—Attorney General Wickersham assured the judges of the United States circuit court at the public hearing on the American Tobacco company's plan of disintegration that the government was satisfied with the plan, subject to the modification outlined, the chief features of which were a trial of the adopted plan for five years.

Mr. Wickersham reduced the period to three years—that none of the corporations into which the combination may be divided shall have more than 40 per cent of any line of the tobacco business, and that the stock of the United Cigar Stores company held by the American Tobacco company should be sold to others than the common stockholders of the tobacco company.

The attorney general showed great anxiety to avoid a receivership for the company. He said in this regard:

"It will be a tremendous calamity to the industries of this country if some means cannot be found to reorganize the tobacco combination by avoiding the ruin and wreck that will be certain to follow a receivership."

Not only did Lewis Cass Lydard, representing the American Tobacco company, make a spirited objection to the court incorporating in the plan a provision for a three or five-year trial period, which Mr. Wickersham explained could be carried out by injunction, but Joseph H. Choate, representing the 4 per cent bondholders, who are not a party to the litigation, which he did most vigorously, against the court taking any such action. Mr. Choate said that the bondholders, who, under the plan, are to exchange their bonds for securities in other companies to be created, would be robbed of securities of a value of over $100,000,000, and in return get bonds which would not have any market value under an arrangement whereby the government could step in at any time and break up the companies on the ground that they were not in harmony with the law.

It is likely that it will be three or four days before the judges are ready to announce that they have formulated a plan or decree. Then the parties to the suit—the government, the American Tobacco company and the twenty-nine individuals named as defendants—will be called in conference to scrutinize the plan for the purpose of determining if it meets with the ideas of those concerned.

The situation, as the lawyers understand it, is that the judges may adopt any plan they please and put into effect, provided it subscribes to the mandate of the United States supreme court in that it dissolves the tobacco company, restores real competition and protects the interests of the public and the security holders or innocent investors, as they have been described at the public hearings. If, however, the judges should decide that the plan as proposed, or with modifications, is not feasible and that no suitable arrangement can be made to break up the tobacco company, then the only alternative for the court is to appoint a receiver and have the properties knocked down at public auction.

P. O. DEPARTMENT SHOWS A PROFIT

$17,479,770 Deficit Two Years Ago Turned to Surplus.

Washington, Nov. 1.—For the first time since 1883 the postoffice department, during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, was conducted at a profit.

In twenty-four months the conduct of the postal service has resulted in changing a deficit of $17,479,770 for the fiscal year 1909, to a surplus of $219,118 for the fiscal year 1911. During the last fiscal year the audited revenues of the department were $237,879,823, and the audited expenditures $237,648,926. During the year certain small, scattering losses brought down the surplus by $11,779.

These facts are detailed in a report of Charles A. Kram, auditor for the postoffice department, in a report submitted to Postmaster General Hitchcock.

During the fiscal year $1,906,025 domestic money orders were issued, aggregating $590,034,432, and 4,060,413 international money orders were issued, aggregating $96,681,211.

Mrs. Lorillard Thrown by Horse.

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 1.—Her horse becoming frightened by an automobile, Mrs. Beekman Lorillard was thrown from her trap on Victoria road and so severely bruised that she is confined to her bed. Her groom had his arm broken. The horse, which belonged to her sister, Mrs. T. W. Raoul, had a hindleg broken and was shot by a policeman.

17 Cows on Two-Day Spree.

Greenwich, Conn., Nov. 1.—Seventeen cows belonging to Soren Jensen, of Banksville, are just getting over a two-day souse. Apples that had fallen on the ground and were left to ferment were responsible for the cows getting drunk. The animals finally became fighting mad and Jensen could not milk them.

ALLIES DEFEAT TURKS

Recapture Two Forts and Large Amount of War Munitions.

Constantinople, Nov. 1.—The Turkish troops with their Arab allies have retaken two forts at Tripoli and forced the Italians to entrench themselves within the city after abandoning large quantities of guns, rifles, ammunition and provisions, according to a telegram from Bahmi Bey, the deputy for Saloniki, who is now at Tripoli.

The message, which was received by the Tainin, adds:

"The Italians were unable to resist the fierce assaults of the Arabs and were compelled to retreat."

"The Italians still hold three forts. The Arabs are displaying remarkable heroism and hope to recapture the city."

The Italian losses, the message said, were heavy. Their battleships were unable to support the land forces effectively, owing to the proximity of the fighters. The Italians were practically driven into the town.

Sage Tea Will Darken The Hair

Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great grand-mothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using at "sage tea." When their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair, with wonderful beneficial effect.

Now ays we don't have to resort to old-time, tiresome methods of gathering the herbs and making tea. This is done by killing chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is call for the ready-made product, Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy containing sage in the proper strength, with addition of sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't neglect your hair. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and notice the difference after a few days' use.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. People's Drug Store, Special Agent for Gettysburg.

How a Courtship Began

By JAMES C. WHARTON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Miss Cartwright, an American girl who had been studying music in Berlin, having finished her course there, took a train for Paris, intending, after replenishing her wardrobe in that city, to proceed to England and thence by steamer to America. Miss Cartwright had a German maid with her, with whom she conversed in the German language.

Besides the American girl and her maid, there were in the compartment a gentleman who sat directly opposite her and two others sitting together at the other side of the compartment. The man who sat opposite was about twenty-eight years old, wore a serious look on his face and buried himself in a book. The two men who sat further on were made up after the manner of London swells. The train had hardly started when one of them said to the other in English, referring to Miss Cartwright:

"She's the first pretty German woman I've seen in this beastly country."

"How do you know she's German?"

"Haven't you heard her speaking to her maid in the jaw-breaking German language?"

"I rather fancy from her outlandish costume she's an American."

"Oh, no; she's not one of those disgusting Americans. She's got too much chic about her for that."

"She can't be a German. Of all the frightful creatures I ever met the German women—"

"Gentlemen," interrupted the man with the book, "such discussion of ladies of different nationalities is inadmissible in a railway carriage."

"Beg pardon," said one of the Londoners; "we didn't know you understood English. But you might as well understand first as last that an Englishman expresses his opinions wherever he is. The British empire extends around the globe; therefore a British subject is always at home; therefore he has a right to say what he likes."

"So he has if he chooses to take the consequences. You have insulted this lady, though I presume she doesn't understand English and is therefore unaware of the fact. I am glad that she does not, for I propose to call you to account for your conduct, and I prefer that she should not know that I am acting in her behalf. Please apologize to me for what you have said about her."

"I make no apologies to any one."

"Then will you inform me where you can be found on the arrival of this train at its destination?"

"At the Hotel de L. Paris," replied the Englishman, taking a card from a case bearing the name of the Marquis of Butters. The card he received in exchange bore the name Baron Rollandsek.

"Well, Baron Rollandsek," said the Britisher, "I fancy I can satisfy you that we Englishmen are not to be frightened by you Germans in any event."

Miss Cartwright had been pretending to understand not a word of this dialogue, but the moment the name Rollandsek was spoken her manner changed.

"Baron, are you the Heidelberg man I have heard so much about through the Ehrensteins of Berlin?"

"They are my friends," said the baron, evidently astonished at her speaking English.

"Doubtless you are the same. This gentleman probably doesn't know that you were conqueror with the small sword in all the student duels of your year at Heidelberg. I am very much obliged to you for your defense of me, but it is not necessary. We Americans are the only nation of the world that has ever successfully resisted British tyranny, and we have lost nothing since Cornwallis surrendered to General Washington." Then, turning to the Englishman: "Gentlemen, I can understand your dislike to apologizing to Baron Rollandsek, but I am quite sure you will not object to apologizing to a woman. Not that I care for an apology on my own account, but that it will settle this matter without the necessity for any further making a mountain out of a mole hill."

"I don't recognize the baron's right."

said the baron, "to criticize my action in any event."

"Very well," replied Miss Cartwright; "he has shown great delicacy in saying that he would prefer that I should not know he was acting in my defense. Now that he is aware that I have understood your conversation I am quite sure he will at my request withdraw that defense."

"Only at your command," said the baron, who was by this time disgusted with the position taken by the marquis.

"Then I must command you," said the lady.

"I regret your command, but feel bound to obey it."

This ended the episode so far as the Englishmen were concerned. Miss Cartwright and Baron Rollandsek entered into conversation, the lady continuously addressing him in his native language. He was accorded permission to call upon her in Paris and followed her to London. Before she sailed for America they were betrothed.

The baron has since his marriage been a member of the general staff of the German army and an aide-de-camp to the emperor.

A TALK ON FANCY.

There is what may be called a legitimate fancy and a frenzied fancy. The first breeds fowls to standard requirements—to beauty—so far as they do not interfere with a fowl's health and usefulness, the production of a maximum amount of meat and eggs. But frenzied fancy will spoil a breed to get a shape or certain color of feather to win a ribbon. This especially applies to the unnatural double mating system, whereby two pens of the same breed must be run, the birds in these pens of different shades and shapes, to produce a certain style male from one and a certain style female from the other for show. This method has denaturalized the Barred Rock to get a feather barred to the skin and lost to this valuable variety first place as a utility fowl.

The American Poultry association is criticized on all sides by practical fanciers for holding up as ideals pictures of fowls made by brainstorm artists and making winning requirements for white fowls such that many of these must be spoiled to get show shape. It is hardly consistent for this association to claim to be a promoter of the great utility poultry industry when it publishes such a standard as the 1910. Its motto is really that of Poultry Fancier, "Dedicated to true fanciers, who appreciate the beauty in standard bred fowls, the people whose ideas of beauty are not based on pounds of flesh and dozens of eggs."

The people who have put Uncle Sam on the poultry pinnacle are those who raise fowls for practical values, and these are demanding a standard for market poultry and eggs and shows where the same may be exhibited as in France, England and Belgium.

As the late standard of perfection has been called by its own makers "absurd," "obsolete," "unnatural," and is to be revised after a first sale of 18,000 copies, it would be wise for the revisers to hear the voice of the utilitarians and make a practical standard that will help the industry and give foundation to its oft repeated claim that it has been and is the prime promoter of practical poultry husbandry in this country.

A standard and shows for utility poultry are bound to come, as also an association of market poultry fanciers that shall be national in its scope and for the betterment and extension of the industry.

MOTHER'S HAND.

There's the hand that holds the scepter With its jewels bright as stars; There's the hand that swings the hero blade That wins the nation's wars;

There's the hand that guides the pen of thought, That's mightier than the sword; There's the horny hand that plows and sows And reaps a rich reward;

There's the hand that guides the ship of state Across the troubled wave; There's the hand that breaks a tyrant's yoke And frees the captive slave;

There's the hand of fashion's beauty, With its diamonds flashing bright; There's the hand with tapering fingers, Soft as velvet, illy white;

But of all the hands of power, Hands of beauty, hands of love, Hands of truth and hands of goodness, Hands that point to God above;

There's the gentle hand of mother That was laid upon my head As she taught my little lips to pray As I knelt by my bed.

TAFT ATTENDS CELEBRATION

Star Attraction at Centennial of Steam Navigation in Rivers.

PITTSBURG IS ENTHUSIASTIC

President Praises Roosevelt in His Speech and Views Mine Explosion Tests.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 1.—President Taft's second swing around the circle as originally planned came to an end here in the most enthusiastic and by far the noisiest demonstration he has experienced in all the 12,000 miles he has traveled.

Pittsburg celebrated the centennial of steam navigation on western divers, and Mr. Taft was the star attraction in the celebration. According to Superintendent of Police McQuade there were close to 150,000 persons at the wharf on the Monongahela river when the president was taken aboard the steamboat Virginia to review the "fleet" anchored there.

For five minutes after the presidential automobile turned down over the cobblestones to the river bank every whistle on every steamboat, river tug, barge or motor boat within miles was tied down. The noise, in its intensity, reminded the president of target practice by a fleet of battleships with twelve-inch guns.

Praises Roosevelt.

It died down long enough for Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth to christen a "replica" of the New Orleans, the first steamboat on western waters, which was navigated down the Monongahela and the Ohio 100 years ago by her great-grandfather, Nicholas J. Roosevelt.

There was quiet for a moment again while the president spoke briefly, praising former President Roosevelt for his successful efforts on behalf of the Panama canal, but when the Virginia, the flagship of the fleet, turned out into the stream the noise started again. For more than an hour and a half the Virginia, with the president in the pilothouse or on the upper deck, steamed down the Ohio and then back to the wharf. Both banks of these rivers were lined with people.

President Taft refused to go on record as favoring woman's suffrage. A handsomely dressed young woman approached the clerk at the hotel where the president was lodging and asked to see him. When told he was in his room and could not be disturbed, she requested that the clerk send him the paper which she handed him. The clerk complied, and a short time the paper, a petition favoring woman's suffrage, was returned with the president's signature or comment.

At that moment the governor of Pennsylvania entered the lobby and was pointed out to the woman. She hastened to his side, and unfolding the document, asked him if he believed in women voting.

"I believe in all intelligent persons voting," replied the governor.

"Then sign this, please," she said.

The governor ran his eye over the petition and the names appended, and handing it back to the woman, walked away without another word. The young woman gave her name as Rose Maritzer, and her residence as Pittsburg. She said she represented the Socialist party.

Views Mine Tests.

Ten thousand persons crowded the grand stand at Forbes field and cheered the president as he at once and watched with absorbing interest the explosion under the direction of the bureau of mines, and the work of forty rescue teams from all parts of the country. Once he pressed a button which exploded a charge.

Instantly smoke and flame burst from the long steel gallery erected in the park and a rescue team dashed for the main opening. They were clad in the armor provided for such happenings, and returned quickly with dummies, representing injured men. An ambulance was in waiting, and they carried the "unconscious" victims by the president's box. He applauded the realistic scene. At the close of the experiments he went to a stand, erected in the field, in company with Secretary of the Interior Fisher, Governor Glasscock, of West Virginia, and a number of other distinguished guests. There he made a brief address and presented the winning teams with the trophies they had won.

Fate of Woman in Hands of Taft.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Unless President Taft or death intervenes a woman will be hanged in the national capital on Nov. 20. The District supreme court affirmed the sentence of Mattie Lomax, colored, condemned to die for murdering her husband. A petition bearing 50,000 names has been presented to the president asking for clemency for the woman. The prisoner is now critically ill and may not live to see the day set for her execution.

Wounded in Salute to Governor.

Shreveport, La., Nov. 1.—When the "thirteenth" was being fired in a salute to Governor Jared Y. Sanders by a detail from the Caddo Rifles, the gun, a six-inch reeled cannon, exploded, seriously wounding Alfred Godfrey, a private in Company L, First regiment, Louisiana National Guard.

EDICT ENDS MANCHU RULE IN CHINA

Emperor Cuts Off Pensions of Reigning Class.

Peking, China, Nov. 1.—More edicts from the throne have plunged China deeper into a reign of terror, and a few days will determine the future course of the empire.

Complete capitulation to the demands of the rebels is made, but they declare that the surrender has come too late and that the revolutionists will continue and stop only when the government is in their hands.

The revolutionists are skeptical of the good faith of the throne, and their cause is strengthened by the evident terror that has seized the ruling dynasty.

One of the edicts issued in the name of the infant emperor ends Manchu rule. The transfer of cabinet offices to the native Chinese is ordered, and the throne pledges that hereafter Chinese and Manchus will be treated on equal footing.

This is interpreted to mean that the system of pensions for the Manchus has been cut off. The Manchus are thoroughly aroused, and a mass sacré of the Chinese is feared. The younger Manchus princes are reported ready to lead the slaughter.

The Chinese are aroused by the cruelty of the imperial troops in burning Hankow after capture. The reports that the rebel forces have captured the railroad station at Hankow, have reorganized and are fighting the advance of the imperial troops has given courage to the Chinese.

The Manchus fear the investment of the capital by the rebels, while the Chinese are anxious over the possibility of a massacre by Manchus. Both parties are appealing to the legations for protection. The latter are taking precautions against any eventuality. Premier Ching is using his influence to curb any tendency toward violence.

BOY HELD FOR MURDER

Lad Shot Playmate, Who Has Since Died.

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 1.—Joseph Curry, eleven years old, was arrested on the charge of murder.

On June 25 Curry shot Herbert E. Woods, a boy of the same age, and the latter died three weeks ago. The boys had been playmates, and it is alleged because of a quarrel which was stopped by Mrs. Woods.

The back yards of their homes faced each other. Curry took a small rifle and a chance shot struck Woods in the forehead. In falling the lad fractured his skull.

Woods' father lodged the charge alleging that young Curry had threatened to shoot the whole of the Woods family.

At Large With Head Battered In.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 1.—Some where Wojciech Manelski, the farm hand who was beaten into insensibility on Saturday night by two colored men, is wandering through the country, scantily clad, his mind unbalanced and his head beaten to a pulp. He left the farmhouse at Mermal, near Hockessin, minus his coat and wearing a pair of bedroom slippers. He has not been seen since. Dr. John Bak, who is attending the battered man, says that unless he is found within the next twenty-four hours the man will undoubtedly die from exposure. His condition is serious. He is suffering from a concussion of the brain.

Potash Find Saves Millions.

Washington, Del. Nov. 1.—Rich potash deposits, said to contain more than enough of this substance to supply the needs of the United States, have been located in the west by scientists of the department of agriculture. This discovery will mean a saving of $12,000,000 a year to this country.

Handy For Reference.

The executive committee of the Ohio state grange has prepared a grange guide in the form of a card that gives information concerning the coming state and national sessions at Columbus. On one side is information regarding halls, programs, etc., and on the other side is a diagram of that part of Columbus in which the halls, hotels, etc., are located.

The granges of Columbia county, N. Y., contribute over $200 every year to the Hudson City hospital, where free treatment is given those unable to pay.

PASTOR INDICTED FOR MURDER

Rev. Richeson Must Stand Trial For Death of Girl.

NEW EVIDENCE DISCOVERED

Telephone Girl, Who Overheard Minister Talking to Girl Two Days Before Her Death, Testifies.

Boston, Nov. 1.—An indictment in five counts, charging that Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church, of Cambridge, murdered Miss Avis Linnell, of Hyannisport, on Oct. 24, by giving her cyanide of potassium, was returned by the Suffolk county grand jury.

The members of the grand jury filed into Judge Sanderson's court, where District Attorney Pelletier and his assistant, Mr. Dwyer, were in attendance. They sent for Judge Sanderson, who was in the corridor. When he responded to the call and ascended the bench the foreman of the jury announced the result of their inquiry.

Mr. Richeson was not in court when the return of the grand jury was made. He had been there earlier in the day, but his case was postponed for a week. Now the action of the grand jury takes the case out of the jurisdiction of the municipal court.

The penalty for the crime for which Mr. Richeson was indicted is death in the electric chair in Massachusetts. The indictment was not read in court. It was turned over to Court Clerk Manning by the foreman of the grand jury. A copy will be turned over to Sheriff Seavey and he will serve it on Mr. Richeson in the Charles street jail.

The grand jury was discharged by Judge Sanderson as soon as the indictment was received.

What a telephone girl overheard on the wires two days before the death of Miss Avis Linnell is expected to be an important part of the state's testimony against the accused minister.

This was one of the developments of the grand jury's inquiry. It heard several additional witnesses and made its report on the date on which Mr. Richeson was to marry Miss Violet Edmunds, a Brookline heiress.

A telephone operator in the Cambridge central has testified that Mr. Richeson talked for fifteen minutes with a girl, believed to have been Miss Linnell, on Thursday before her death. It is now asserted by the police that another operator "cut in" frequently on the couple and heard parts of the conversation. The police declare her information is of startling import.

When Richeson's case was called in the municipal court the hearing was postponed until Nov. 7. The minister was in court only two minutes.

MFARLAND NOT ARRAIGNED

Alleged Wife Murderer's Lawyer Demands Examination of Indictment.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 1.—The arraignment of Allison MacFarland, charged with wife murder, was postponed when a dispute arose between his attorney and the public prosecutor, after the prisoner had been brought into court.

At the last minute MacFarland's lawyer demanded time to examine the indictment. After a lively dispute the court granted a delay, but to get a copy of the indictment the defendant's counsel will have to make a formal application. No date for the arraignment was set.

FINDS MURE ESQUIMOS

Bishop discovers a New Tribe of About 1000.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 1.—Right Rev. Dr. Holmes, bishop of Athabasca, who has just returned from a voyage down the Great Mackenzie river, announces the existence of a hitherto unknown tribe of 1000 Esquimos, living east of the Mackenzie river and between the Great Bear lake and the Arctic ocean.

The Esquimos still hunt with bow and arrow and use stone implements. The bishop says that they have a higher intelligence than the ordinary Indians, and are apt and eager to learn, but at present there are only two teachers among the 12,000 miles of the Mackenzie.

Hydro-Aeroplane Stranded.

Fortress Monroe, Va., Nov. 1.—The naval hydro-aeroplane Triad, manned by Lieutenant Elyson and Lieutenant Towers, which started to sail from here to Annapolis, is stranded, with burned out batteries, at Crab Neck, Va., at the mouth of the York river. A second attempt to reach Annapolis will be made as quickly as possible.

Yeggmen Crack P. O. Safe.

Wabash, Ind., Nov. 1.—The safe in the postoffice at Lafontaine was blown up by two yeggmen and about $300 in stamps and $40 in money was obtained. The two men then made their escape, leaving tools behind them which they had stolen from a nearby blacksmith shop.

Football Injuries Fatal.

Burlington, Ill., Nov. 1.—Louis Luthy, fifteen years old, a pupil at the South Broadway school, died as a result of injuries sustained in a football scrimmage two weeks ago. He was injured in the hip, an abscess formed and blood poisoning developed.

MOST FARMERS

Do not object to their neighbors and friends hunting on their land or to any others who have due regard for their property, but all farmers do object to the hunter who tramples down grain, tears down fences and does other damage. The surest way to protect yourself is to placard your property. Cardboard trespass signs 5 cents each, 6 for 25 cents; muslin signs 10 cents each, 3 for 25 cents. NATURE, FAKED AGAIN!

"What will you have?" the waiter said. "The man with nose 40 red." "Some roasted canvasback," said he. "That's the jumbandy bird for me!"

"What will you have?" the waiter cried. "The man with nose 40 red." "Some roasted canvasback," said he. "That's the jumbandy bird for me!"

Then to a farmer all sunburned. The slick-tongued waiter the next turned. And asked, "My friend from the country. What shall I order now for thee?"

"I'll take a pheasant, sir. You bet. The pheasant tastes most pleasant yet! Of all the meat on land and sea. A pheasant's breast, you bet, for me!"

Those fellows ate their birds, well pleased. The farmer the chef's hand quick seized. And said, "Of all the dandy pheasant meat. Yours tasted to me the most sweet."

They all ate guinea, but didn't know. The cook had nature faked it so. The funniest joker of it all—The birds came from that farmer's stall!

C. M. BARNETT.

CROOKED BREASTBONE.

When a shipper of dressed poultry received word from the commission man that he would have to take a lower price for his birds because they had crooked breastbones he certainly sat up and took notice.

A curved keel certainly detracts from the appearance of market poultry, for the first part of a fowl a customer sees and feels is the breast, and in the showroom a fowl that otherwise would win receives a cut of one-half to two points for this defect.

Many claim this fault comes from young chickens taking to the roost too early, the tender cartilage of the breast not being sufficiently hard to stand roost pressure, and so some provide eight inch shelves for young stock to roost on when they get the inclination. But who has ever seen wild turkeys or pheasants with this defect? And they take to the trees quickly and roost on narrow, round boughs that should dent their keel, and, besides, this fault is not always a dent on the keel, but is often a twist or curve to the side and is often combined with crooked back.

It is natural for chickens to take to the roost at eight to ten weeks, big breeds excepted, and it is best for their health and growth to do so, as they get off the floor, out of the dirt, away from vermin, from crowding, too much heat and that cramped position. But we hardly think a fowl gets this fault if it has inherited no tendency to curved keel and has been properly nourished from the time of leaving the shell.

We note this defect in incubator chicks where temperature was not at too high a degree and curvature of the spine often with it.

It is rare among inbred stock and may be expected where chicks suffer from crowding, filth, vermin, close confinement and bad air. The bones of fowls gradually solidify and should be sufficiently hard to withstand roost pressure, and if they are not it is a sign of immaturity, of a lack of bone-making material in the ration or other mismanagement, for when nature calls a fowl to roost it is to roost unless some nature fakery have bungled the job.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

The standard of perfection recognizes seven varieties of turkeys—Bronze, Black, White Holland, Narragansett, Buff, Slate and Bourbon Red. Turkeys are becoming so scarce in some parts of the country that in a few years people won't know a turkey when they see it unless they consult an encyclopedia.

Dried lawn clippings aren't much of a feed unless full of white clover. Clover to the hundred pounds contains 29 per cent dry matter, 2.1 ash, 2.9 protein and 16.4 carbohydrates. Its nutritive ratio is 1.5, while that of wheat is 1.7. Clover dry or steamed and mixed with mash is bulky for new health and eggs.

The Pekin duck of this country is an improvement on the original Pekin brought from China. We may make an of the "heaven Chinese," his pig, all, chickens and rat ration, but then we brag of our poultry let's remember that he originated the ancestral breeds of many of our best fowls.

Before you sell your turkeys at market you had better advertise them first as breeders, as you may double your money. An Ohio farmer sold thirty-three young turkeys in November for $100. The buyer sold them for breeders for $250. The trio from which the birds were hatched cost only $9. So the farmer made a pretty fair profit after all. A little ad. often adds to the profits.

The Chinese are expert poultrymen, are the greatest duck raisers in the world, and if a complete census of their poultry population was taken it would likely show that they have more fowls than any other nation. They are little for color, but breed for size and eggs and are the originators of the Cochins and Shanghais, the giants of poultrydom.

Elevated locations are generally well swept and need windbreaks to protect young stock, as fighting the wind saps their strength and gusts of air give them colds, catarrh and roup. Evergreens are here useful and ornamental.

If there is not room for air to circulate under a board floor in the hen house the floor soon gets damp and rots. Then that space underneath makes a harbor for rats and mice, which gnaw through and help themselves to the hens' ration or feed on the grain that falls through. Concrete is becoming more and more popular, and board and earth floors will soon be curiosities on big plants.

W. M. Barnett.

A friend who has had a small field of alfalfa this season reports three tons of hay from it per acre, and that in a season when the second and third cuttings were greatly reduced by the dry weather in July and August. As it was, the yield was nearly three times that of nearby clover fields. Had the season been favorable he thinks he would have obtained a yield of at least five tons per acre during the whole season.

CAN KILBANE BEAT ATTELL?

All Things Considered Cleveland Boy Has Fine Chance.

SHOWS SPEED AND SKILL.

Youngster Who Recently Defeated All the Cracks on the Pacific Coast Picked by Many to Defeat the Feather-weight Champion.

Now that Johnny Kilbane has cleared his path toward the championship goal now held by Abe Attell the question presents itself. What are Kilbane's chances with the holder of the championship title?

There will be a big diversity of opinion among the followers of the game throughout the country. Johnny has thousands of admirers who have absolute confidence in his ability to beat the wonderful little Hebrew fighter, and on the Pacific coast there are a good many who will support him in his dispute with Attell in case they are matched.

Although the sporting enthusiasts of the coast have the reputation of being partisan to a marked degree and bitterly prejudiced against all boxers from other parts of the country when they are opposed in battle to a native son, there are some fair minded who cannot get around the fact that the Cleveland boy arrived on the coast a stranger and in the face of discouraging conditions beat three of the hardest boys in his class, thereby earning recognition in the select circle and the right to battle with the holder of the world's championship.

In other words, Johnny Kilbane, by his gallant fighting, made the Californians, prejudiced as most of them were, like him. They will, or at least a number of them, now back him in his match with Abe, for the Californians are a shrewd lot when they set out to wager their money on a boxing bout.

Viewed from a strictly unbiased point of view and with due respect to Abe Attell and the wonderful ability he has displayed in the past, it now looks as if Kilbane stands a good chance of winning the title that Abe has defended so valiantly for so many years. There are several reasons for this conclusion. In the first place, Kilbane has shown high class in every department of the game. He has proved to be an exceptionally brainy sort of a fighter, possessed of the necessary speed, hitting power and ability to stand punishment. He has also shown remarkable endurance, for he has finished all of his battles in good condition and not been fatigued to any extent.

Attell is reaching an age at which the average pugilist begins to retrograde, while Kilbane is just approaching his maturity as a fighter. The best fighters ever known to this country reached their best between the years of twenty-one and twenty-four years. Kilbane is now going on twenty-two, and he is still gaining in strength and hitting power.

GOTCH MAKING TOUR.

Meeting All Comers, Too, but They Must Tackle Turk First.

Frank Gotch, the champion wrestler of the world, is being pestered by knights of the mat from all over America and Europe for bouts. Since his triumph over Hackenschmidt Gotch has been in no mood to try conclusions with a man like Zhyzco, but has been busily engaged perfecting a tour around the world in which he picks up lemons to drop in overnight matches.

In the Gotch stable is Yusuf Mahmoud, the big Turk, who has forced the shoulders of many good wrestlers to the mat. Since Yusuf has been engaged by Gotch the champion has used the Turk as the "fall guy." Every time a wrestler challenges Gotch to a bout the champion replies, "Throw Mahmoud and then I'll consider your case." As the Turk is almost as good as Gotch at the game, the climbers of the wrestling ladder fail to reach the champion.

COLUMBIA TO RACE AGAIN.

Defender of America's Cup Against Shamrock I. and II. Being Overhauled. The famous old yacht Columbia, which successfully defeated the American cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock I. and II. and which was afterward converted into a house yacht, is to race again. She has been towed to Magothy river and is being fitted out with a racing rig.

The Columbia is owned by Captain Charles A. Tucker, who has been using her as a houseboat about Baltimore waters. He now proposes to have the old cup defender thoroughly overhauled, which will include new mast, rigging and sails.

McDonald Establishes Shot Put Mark. Pat McDonald, the weight tosser, made a new record with the twenty-four pound shot recently at Celtic park, New York. He succeeded in propelling the sphere a distance of 38 feet 10 1/2 inches. This supplants the old mark of 38 feet 2 1/2 inches, made by Ralph Rose in New York seven years ago.

There are thousands of farms the country over whose owners do not think they can afford a manure spreader where more than the cost of a good machine is wasted annually in a loss of fertilizer elements as a result of careless handling of the barnyard manures. A ton of fresh manure is worth $2.25 in crop production, but loses 50 per cent of this value if allowed to weather in the open for four or five months. On this basis it will be seen how quickly the value of a spreader would be dissipated.

GETTYSBURG, PA.

NEW YORK GRANGE.

Outline of the Work Accomplished by the Legislative Committee.

The legislative committee of the New York state grange during the session of the legislature has done most efficient work. It opposed the Glittins race track bill, which would relieve the directors of fair associations from liability for pool selling and gambling at the race tracks. It opposed the Foley milk bill, that would create a commission to fix the maximum price of milk and would give them power to change the milk standard. The bill failed. The committee strenuously opposed the highway law, which abolished the nonpartisan highway commission. It approved the appropriation by the state for exhibiting its agricultural resources at the land show in Madison Square Garden this fall; also, a small appropriation to determine if the city sewage could not be used as fertilizer. It also favored the bill to provide more land and a new building for the Geneva experiment station. It supported some of the bills relative to assessment and taxation. These bills to some extent were the outcome of the Utica tax conference. It also supported the Collins commission merchants' bill and the Gregg pure seed bill. The committee also suggested several changes in the game and co-operative fire insurance laws. The committee consists of State Master F. N. Godfrey of Cattaraugus and Edward Knickerbocker of Dutchess county.
